Lindsay is 37 and from South Yorkshire. Prior to her becoming a model nearly 2 years ago, Lindsay had a very different life.

Lindsay was a sales manager on holiday parks selling static caravans, log cabins and chalets. Lindsay travelled and lived all over the UK whilst doing this and loved the job so much.

Lindsay made the decision to retrain after doing her previous job a long time and became a stock broker and financial adviser. Lindsay had to give up work sadly in 2010 due to continued ill health and has not been able to pick her career back up in this sector.

Lindsay suffers a few health conditions, fibromyalgia and ME/CFS being two of them. The fibromyalgia awareness colour is purple, hence the purple hair! The Modelling and becoming a makeup artist has changed her life completely and has given her such enjoyment and a totally new outlook on life.

Lindsay loved to ride her horses and dedicated much of her time to her beloved animals, those also include her first cat Freckle and her current cat Treacle! Growing up she was also a musician, playing the flute and singing, going on to obtaining a York Degree in music and music technology at the Scarborough Campus.

Lindsay loves Modelling and is so surprised at her popularity and how fast it has snowballed from a quick shoot for a friend and putting an image on twitter, to where she is now!

Lindsay is very versatile in the genres of modelling, including bridal, fashion and the one people know her best for, her lingerie modelling. There is also the hair and makeup that Lindsay does for models, brides and obviously herself for the majority of her shoots. Lindsay loves doing the crazy creative makeup as it brings out her artistic side, especially as she tells us, she cant draw, not even a stick man!

Lindsay has been single for about 6 years, but there is a glimmer of hope on the horizon of a special man that may put her single, mad cat lady days to an end!

Lindsay hopes to be modelling for a long time yet to come as it is a massive part of her life now!

When was the 1st moment you felt you wanted to model? At the age of 15 when I did a photo shoot for a local store catalog

Was anyone or people your inspiration? My friend Deanna Gantt inspired to to start back modeling after I had stopped for a while

How long have you been modeling? 10+years (Since I was youngster lol)

What categories of modeling do you enjoy most? Runway, print, and spokes modeling

How has your experience in the modeling world been so far? It has been great! Even the downfalls because they were all learning experiences that I could even apply outside of the modeling world

Any great experiences in particular? Walking on a runway show for Angela Simmons and becoming a character in a comic book

What's your greatest fear regarding modeling? My greatest fear was how people would perceive me and if they accepted seeing me in a different way

When its all said and done what's 2 things you want to be able to say you accomplished in Modeling?

1st That I've helped women embrace their body and love themselves no matter what main stream media shows them is beautiful

2nd thing would be conquering my dreams of modeling w/o compromising who I am.

Is there anything else that you thought about pursuing in the industry besides modeling? I would like to act

Is there anything or more that you would like people to know about you? I'm really happy to have the opportunity to model and have great people around to support me and share this journey with. I'd really like to thank Kenny Montana (makeup) Kash Dior (hair) and photographer Kenny Ramsey/hierographic, my mom and my management at Industry Dreams for believing in me and supporting me

This petite, yet fierce Asian wanderlust dreamer is definitely a true beauty with brains! She had disappeared from the modeling scene for quite some time now, due to her health struggles. But the love from and for her fans has brought her back!

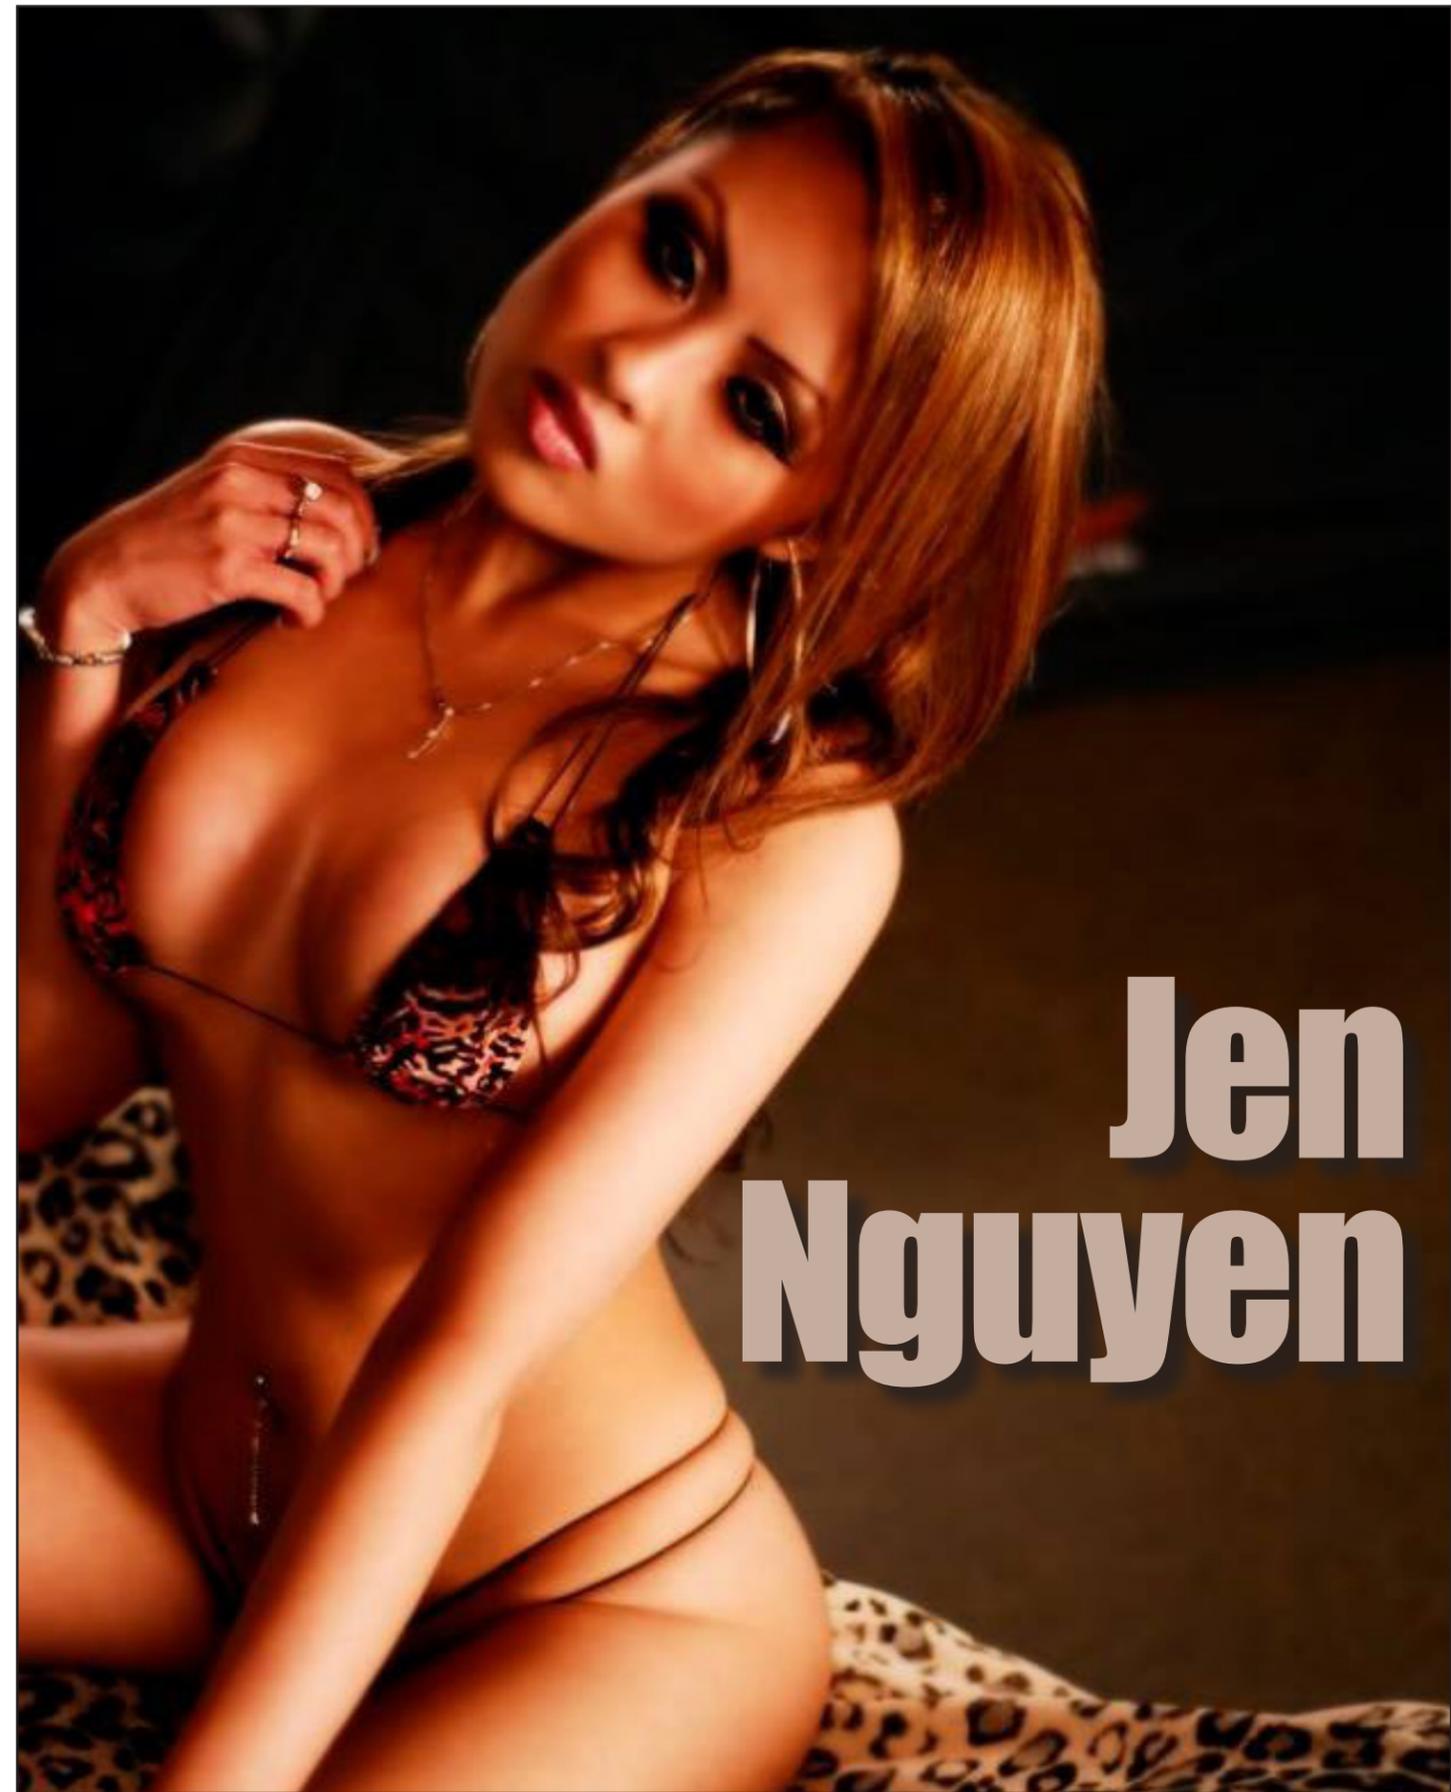

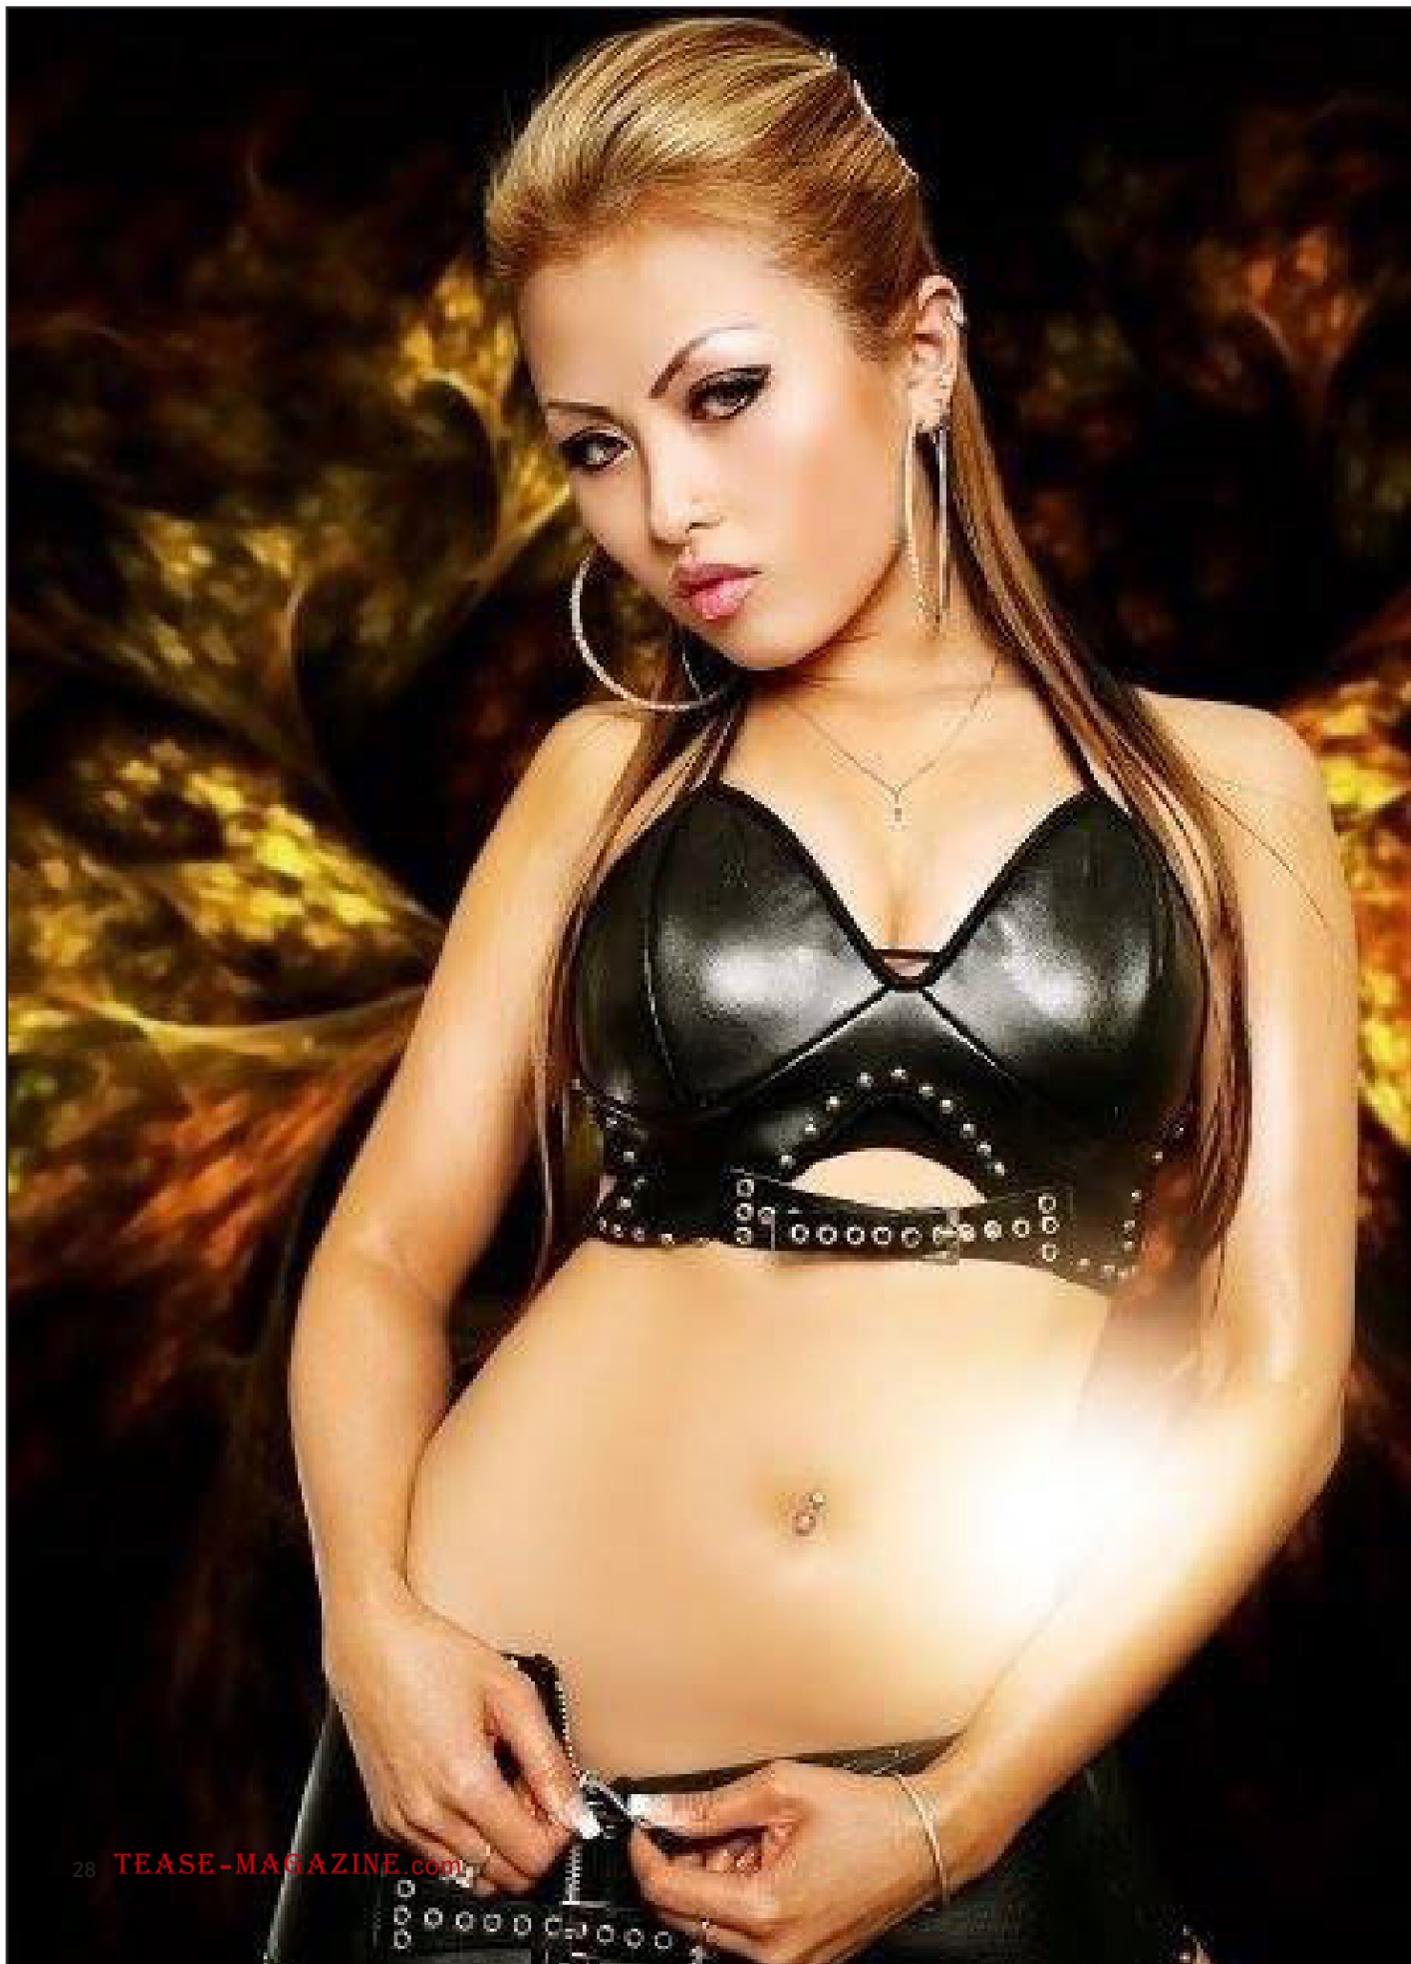

We were lucky enough to get some time with her, as she discloses her bio:

Coming from a typical Asian family, where education with a science background is always priority, modeling was never even an option in my world, until after I achieved my Bachelors of Science in Molecular Biology and Biochemistry. At that point in my life, I definitely had a tough time figuring out my true passion, as I was torn between my interests in music and arts and my parents' expectations of me in science medicine. I was so depressed and disappointed in myself, because even after having surpassed such a long journey of accomplishments, I was still clueless as to what my true purpose in life really is. So I needed to take a break and devote some time for self-discovery. During this time, modeling opportunities continuously came my way, like it was meant to be. Immediately, I was featured in a number of calendars, magazines, newspapers, websites, tradeshows, car shows, fashion shows and various projects and promotions, and everything was like a dream! But unfortunately, there was little opportunity in Calgary, and it was hard having to fly all the time, being away from family and friends. So I decided to hit the books again and continue my education. I wanted to pursue a profession that would please my parents, to show them my respect and appreciation for all that they had sacrificed for my future. However, life is too short not to follow your passion, and yet too long to be living without your passion. For the longest time, I still couldn't find my true passion and I struggled to search for a way to make my parents proud of me, without devoting my life to fulfill their dreams. But then one thing just led to another, and then everything just came together like the pieces of a puzzle to complete me, who I am, and who I want to be. I then realized at that point that my true, ultimate passion is skin, whether it's expressing skin beauty through art, or preserving skin health through science. Conveniently, both my professions go hand in hand, as being knowledgeable in skin science and anti-aging enables me to care for my skin's health and prolong my modeling career. So now that I've completed my studies in laser and medical aesthetics, and my Medical Laser and Aesthetic Skin Center is well-established, I have more time to accept the modeling opportunities that are knocking on my door. I think that every woman is beautiful in her own unique way, and I just want to showcase my art to represent and express women's beautiful femininity.
